Senior Race, HEALANIS WIN Time, 10 minutes, 52-5 seconds Junior Race, HEALANIS WIN Time 10 minutes, 16 seconds

For the tenth time the Hawaiian Rowing Association's regatta was rowed this morning, for the eighth time between the Healanis and Myrtles as now constituted. The race today, both senior and junior was rowed under excellent conditions of wave and weather. There was a splendid crowd in attendance. Partisanship ran high, but good spirit prevailed.

The senior race started at 10:03, the Myrtles had the inside course which was of no advantage because of the calm sea. The Healanis took the lead from the start and held it to the end, finishing about five boat lengths ahead. The Healanis time was 10:05 2-5; Myrtles 10:46 1-5. The Myrtles deserve great credit from the fact that two of their men were in effect substitutes for members of the regular crew who were sick. In the Junior race the conditions were not so favorable because of a strong breeze that had sprung up. The start was at 10:58. It was neck to neck for the first half mile. After that the Healanis took the lead and kept it to the finish, winning by about three lengths in 10:16, Myrtles 10:41.

The crowd which left on the Pearl city train was bright with the colors of the Healanis and Myrtles. It was about an average crowd and filled ten passenger cars. There were red flags and blue flags in abundance, and the colors of the competing clubs were worn in every possible way.

The ladies wore blue dresses and red dresses, to show their favor for one or the other club, they had the rival colors in their hats, in ribbons in their hair and in shirt waists, neck ties, parasols, handkerchiefs and flags. Many of the men had canes showing their partisanship color. The women draped their parasols with red or blue ribbons.

The train with its crowd on board pulled out quite promptly. As the cars rolled out of the depot a Rapid Transit car from Kalihi drew up opposite the station on King street. There were four young ladies in it who were waving frantically at the moving train. They had thought they were going to see the races, but they weren't. The train ran on and the maidens got off the street car and looked at it. It was very touching.

CABLE LANDED THIS MORNING, FINAL SPLICE TO BE MADE THIS AFTERNOON

The shore end of the Pacific cable was successfully landed at Sans Souci this morning about 8 o'clock. The cable ship Anglia began at 6 o'clock to prepare for the third attempt to land the cable and within two hours, the line had been gotten ashore and the most difficult work of the cable staff completed. Only one attempt was necessary. The heavy cable was gotten in shore without delay.

After this landing had been completed the work of splicing to the 3-4 of a mile of heavy shore cable, the smaller intermediate section was begun. This work was completed shortly after 11 o'clock. At 11:20 a. m. the Anglia hove up anchor and started to pay out the intermediate cable. This section of cable will be run from the end of the shore line to the end of the deep sea section which is moored about 16 miles distant from Sans Souci.

The Anglia will require about two hours in which to complete the run to the buoy where the deep sea is moored. The final work of splicing the intermediate and deep sea sections will require about four to five hours. Should the weather be unfavorable, this work will require a longer time. The weather is very favorable today, however, and there seems little danger of any delay by reason of the weather.

The cable completed should therefore, be dropped into the water at about 5:30 to 6:30 o'clock tonight. The American-Philippine cable will then be finished and ready for the congratulatory messages from Governor Taft of the Philippines to President Roosevelt to be flashed over the wire.

With the certain completion of the cable tonight, becomes apparent the fact that the cable has been put through by Clarence MacKay and his associates in remarkably short time. It is exactly 7 months and 9 days today, since the first work of laying the cable at San Francisco was begun December 13 last.

The landing yesterday afternoon at Sans Souci had to be abandoned after two unsuccessful attempts to get the cable ashore. Two towing hawsers parted so the cable force decided to wait until this morning before finishing that part of their work. The Anglia will remain in Honolulu about a week longer.

A SPLENDID PATRIOTIC DEMONSTRATION IS WITNESSED IN JUDGE MORRIS M. ESTEE'S COURT ROOM

The United States courtroom was much too small for the crowd which gathered at ten o'clock this morning in response to Judge Estee's announcement that he would open court at this usual hour and make the day's proceedings a celebration in honor of the Fourth of July. The room was brilliantly decorated by Miss Ryan. The national colors met the eye at every point and a wealth of golden shower blossoms made the scene brighter than ever.

The celebration was a unique one in many respects. The court opened in the usual way, all rising as the judge entered the room and the bailiff officiated as usual, with the loud raps of a gavel and the "Hear ye, hear ye, all persons having business with the Honorable District court of the United States for the Territory of Hawaii will now draw near, give your attention and you shall be heard!"

With Judge Estee on the bench were Chief Justice Frear and Associates Galbraith and Perry, while in jury box and before the bar of the court were the circuit judges, federal and territorial officials and a very representative gathering, as far as the limits of the hall allowed, of the leading members of the bar and citizens of all kinds. Governor and Mrs. Dole were among those present and on the Ewa side of the court were many ladies.

"We are not called here for business as the bailiff has just told you," said Judge Estee, "but to celebrate the Declaration of Independence and the Fourth of July. I have been informed that you have always had a celebration here and I took the liberty of proposing that we have a little celebration here, by our own people, and by that I mean the people of this Territory of Hawaii. I shall venture to call upon leading citizens for a few remarks. There has been no preparation and will be no orations. Just speak from the heart and say whether or not this is the best government on earth and the best country on earth, to you at least."

A round of applause followed Judge Estee's remarks and he then announced that the Governor would be called upon first, after the reading of the Declaration of Independence, by John W. Cathcart. The latter read the famous document in a clear and ringing voice and loud applause followed the grave pledge with which it concludes.

Governor Dole began with a reference to the editorial in which it was stated, in The Star last night, that the celebration should be directed first of all to the administration of justice within the country, rather than the material growth of the nation. "I wish to here unreservedly endorse that sentiment," said the chief executive. "The righteousness of administration is paramount in the strength of nations, above armies and navies. The struggles of peace are harder than those of war. All hear the call to duty when war breaks out. There is an epidemic of patriotism, but it is more difficult to be a good citizen in times of peace than a good soldier in time of war."

"This Territory has become a member of this great family of states," continued the Governor, after referring to the war and the "friendly rivalry" of the states in the arts of peace and government.

A great part of our population is not trained in the sentiments and traditions of the United States. We have work to change that. I believe that the next generation of Hawaiians will be more alive to
